VOL. 1

as you reach into the digital void...

something pulls you in

As your essence is being pulled into another realm,
you can make out the sound of strange static becoming louder

an unexplained yet pleasant sensation fills your mind

like waves that sweep over you you find your consciousness adapting to a new enviroment

Welcome to Ambaland

You awake to the dawn in a strange digital land
your mind interpreting the new sensations
You start to see...

Its graceful arrival above your head when you are lost amidst the treacherous woods, will show you the path to our safe space of ambaland, but you have to be deemed worthy of its assistance first, if not, then it will lead you to your impending doom, to the dangerous creatures lurking around.

This was made by hand on paper, and i wanted to make my hand drawings to come to the surface alongside the digital manipulations."

"This was a photo I took while visiting Chichén Itzá about four or five years ago. I've had the original photo sitting for a while, but wasn't able to get an edit I was happy with until we started talking about creating this zine.
The lore provided by @cerulean_stoicism on Pit of Technicolor, gave way to this image. I always love hypercolored edits already so using OneLab and Processing on this for the sky and circled framing.

Then using GIMP to merge the original image so the temple comes through better. I ended up using a different image for the Pit of Technicolor prompt challenge but this edit stuck with me, and having it for the zine seemed like a great fit." - @stylelessknave

"A place of darkness in a literal sense, blind monks live there and only dress in black or white robes. The white robed monks are completely silent, yet they walk the temple grounds like they are seeing. It is their task to listen. The black robed monks broadcast a low frequency at all times when walking around the temple as well as in prayer."
While overseas I was able to visit the Sabancı Central Mosque in Adana, Turkey, back before I knew what glitch art even was. I hadn't planned for this photo to line up with the lore passage above, but after draft 100 of several colorful versions, I stopped on this black and white mix and then putting on the staticky overlay, with the mosque looming like a large creature in the back - it clicked better for this lore description.

This photo of mine of the Coliseum, is another picture I've been sitting on. I usually use it to test out new editors or glitch tools I come across but I've yet to actually post something with it.

I can't think of any lore that I've read on Ambaland that suits it, but a elaboration on one of our prompt challenges gives it a reason to fit

"In Ambaland the Aether, a layer that is comparable to naturally occurring radiowaves, exists, that can be manipulated by certain individuals",
"...we artists, have the ability to conjure up, to decipher, the content of these Aetherwaves in such ways that it creates art."
